Air Pacific's First Boeing Next-Generation 737-700 Painted

The first Boeing 737-700 for Air Pacific recently rolled out of the Boeing paint shop in Seattle. The Fijian flag carrier is the launch operator for the 737 Next-Generation aircraft, enhancing Air Pacific's reputation as a leading airline in the South Pacific region. Air Pacific serves travelers with flights connecting island destinations with major cities in Australia, New Zealand, Canada and the United States.
