Transavia Airlines Orders Four Boeing Next-Generation 737-800s

Transavia Airlines, a scheduled and charter carrier of the Netherlands, ordered four Boeing Next-Generation 737-800s, with options for 12 more. Two of these new jetliners are scheduled for delivery in 2000. The remaining two will be delivered in 2002, bringing the Transavia 737-800 fleet to a total of 12. The new airplanes will join eight previously ordered 737-800s and replace the oldest 737-300s currently in Transavia's fleet.
