Passengers Circle the Globe in the Comfort of a Boeing 767

This new Lauda Air Boeing 767-300ER (extended airplane) left Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 30 on a 12-day, around-the-world adventure that will take 130 passengers to four continents. The airplane was delivered to Lauda Air on Aug. 9 and is the seventh 767 in the airline's fleet. It is configured to hold 36 passengers in business class and 209 in economy, and has a state-of-the-art inflight entertainment system. Each seat has its own telephone and interactive video system

###