Boeing 7E7 Team Moves to Main Everett Facility

Paul Dees, an engineer working on the Boeing 7E7, is one of the many employees who recently relocated to the main Boeing [NYSE: BA] Everett facility. The Boeing 7E7 team -- including program management, airplane development, supplier management, suppliers and the associated support functions -- has moved out of the Bomarc facility less than two miles away from the main Boeing Everett plant. The move will allow the 7E7 team to grow and remain collocated as it progresses toward seeking authority to offer the new airplane later this year or early in 2004.
