Brazil's GOL Orders Up To 43 Boeing 737-800s

15 Firm Orders, purchase rights to 28 additional by 2010

On May 17, 2004, Boeing and Brazil's GOL Linhas Aereaes S.A., one of the world's most profitable airlines, announced that the airline has ordered 43 737-800 passenger airplanes worth up to US $2.7 billion at list prices.

GOL begins receiving the 15 firm-ordered 737-800s between 2007 and 2009. GOL holds purchase rights for the remainder, which can be exercised between 2005 and 2010.
