

Another 737-800 Added to Lauda Air's Fleet

Lauda Air, part of the Austrian Airlines Group, will soon be flying another Boeing Next-Generation 737-800 with Blended Winglets. Vienna-based Lauda Air already operates four 737-800s. The airplane can fly as high as 12,500 meters (41,000 feet). That is 610 meters (2,000 feet) higher than competing jetliners can fly.

###

For further information:

Samantha Solomon

Boeing - Brussels

office: + 32 2 777 0740

Cheryl Addams

Boeing - Seattle

office: + 1 206 766 2919

Sandy Angers

Boeing - Renton

office: + 1 425 965 9380

Ken DeJarlais

kenneth.r.dejarlais@boeing.com
