

Boeing Marks Completion of its 757 Commercial Airplane Program

Boeing Marks Completion of its 757 Commercial Airplane Program

Boeing today marked the completion of its 757 commercial airplane program, as thousands of employees and special guests saluted one of history's most successful passenger airplanes. The 1,050th and final 757, a Shanghai Airlines 757-200, was the centerpiece of a ceremony at the company's Renton, Wash., factory. The 757 is one of only seven large commercial jetliner models that sold more than 1,000 units.

###

For further information:

Sandy Angers

office: 425-965-9380

mobile: 206-851-7974

Ken DeJarlais

kenneth.r.dejarlais@boeing.com
