

Boeing Unveils China Airlines 747-400 in Distinctive Livery

Boeing Unveils China Airlines 747-400 in Distinctive Livery

The newest Boeing [NYSE: BA] 747-400 is shown after being removed from the company's Everett, Wash., paint facility. Destined for delivery to Taiwan-based China Airlines, the 747-400 featured an exciting and unique promotional paint scheme. Combining Boeing's new dynamic blue-and-white livery with China Airlines' traditional plum blossom on the tail of the airplane, the special design symbolizes the great relationship between the two companies. The airplane is the first 747-400 with the Boeing Signature Interior, providing unrivaled comfort for the airline's passengers. China Airlines is taking delivery of the new airplane in December.

###

Neg K63168

For further information:

Boeing Communications

206-766-2910

Ken Dejarlais

kenneth.r.dejarlais@boeing.com
