Boeing Delivers a 737-800 to Canada's Sunwing

Boeing delivered a new 737-800 to Canada's Sunwing Airlines Tuesday. It is the first new Next-Generation 737 received by the airline, which flies passengers for the company's travel arm, Sunwing Vacations. The 737-800 delivered Tuesday is Sunwing's third 737 and its first to be equipped with Blended Winglets, curved wing extensions that reduce fuel consumption. Following delivery, the new airplane took off from Boeing Field for the airline's home base at Toronto Pearson airport.

###

For further information:
Nicolaas Groeneveld-Meijer
International & Sales Communications
206-766-2229