

Boeing Delivers 777-200ER in Asiana Airlines' New Livery

Boeing Delivers 777-200ER in Asiana Airlines' New Livery

Boeing [NYSE:BA] today delivered a 777-200ER (Extended Range) airplane to Asiana Airlines in the airline's new livery.

The South Korean-based airline introduced its new livery during a celebration in November 2006, which features a tail design using traditional Korean colors on a gray background. The airline's fleet will be converted to the new livery over the next five years.

Asiana operates a mixed fleet of more than 60 airplanes, including 737s, 747s and 767s, that connects more than 60 cities in 17 countries. The twin-engine 777 is the most fuel-efficient airplane in its category, a key element in its leading economic performance, and it releases fewer emissions into the environment than its four-engine competitor.

###

For further information:

Ken Mercer

Communications

Boeing Commercial Airplanes

206-766-2904

kenneth.b.mercer@boeing.com

Chuck Cadena

777 Communications

425-717-8585

chuck.cadena@boeing.com
