Boeing Tests Biofuels for Commercial Aviation Uses

Boeing Lab Technician Julie Eberley conducts automated freeze-point testing on jet fuel samples at the Boeing Commercial Airplanes Fuels and Lubricants Test Laboratory in Seattle, Wash. Boeing is exploring second-generation biofuel testing to identify renewable alternative fuel sources for aviation uses as part of the company's environmental initiative.

###

For further information: Terrance Scott Commercial Airplanes Environmental Communications +1 206 766 2949