Boeing, SAS Agree to Exercise Options For Two Next-Generation 737s

Boeing [NYSE: BA] today announced that SAS Scandinavian Airlines has exercised options for two Next-Generation 737-800 jetliners. The airplanes will strengthen the 737 fleet of SAS Scandinavian Airlines to support growth of its subsidiaries on domestic and intra-Europe routes. The airline will equip the airplanes, worth approximately $150 million at list prices, with fuel-saving Blended Winglets.
