Boeing Appoints Dorange as Communications Director for Europe, Middle East and Africa

Madrid, Spain, Sept. 24, 2008 -- Boeing [NYSA: BA] has appointed Chantal Dorange as director of corporate communications for Europe, the Middle East and Africa.

Dorange, 43, succeeds Charlie Miller, who was recently named vice president of International Corporate Communications. She will oversee a network of company and consultant communicators in more than a dozen markets across the region.

"With her 20 years of national and regional experience, Chantal brings a strong strategic background and knowledge to the international communications function," said Miller. "In this key role, she will work closely with the Boeing International regional and country leaders and the company's business units to help shape markets, grow the business, and strengthen and leverage local presence."

Dorange, who joined Boeing in 2002 and will remain in Madrid, had been communications director for Spain and Central/Eastern Europe. Previously, she was director of public affairs and communications at Baxter in Spain and, before that, she held various communications and public affairs positions at Merck & Co. in Spain and the United States.

Dorange holds a Bachelor of Arts in Law from Universidad Complutense in Madrid and completed additional studies in European and Business Law at the University of Sceaux (Paris). She has a Master in Business Communications from Corporación Multimedia (Madrid).

Boeing is the world's leading aerospace company and the largest manufacturer of commercial jetliners and military aircraft combined. Additionally, Boeing designs and manufactures rotorcraft, electronic and defense systems, missile, satellites, launch vehicles and advanced information and communications systems. As a major service provider to NASA, Boeing operates the Space Shuttle and International Space Station. The company also provides numerous military and commercial airline support services. Boeing has customers in more than 90 countries around the world and is one of the largest U.S. exporters in terms of sales. Headquartered in Chicago, Boeing employs more than 160,000 people across the United States and in 70 countries. Total company revenues for 2007 were $66.4 billion.

###
Contact Info:
Charlie Miller
Vice President, International Corporate Communications
The Boeing Company
Tel: +44 (0) 208 235 5671
charlie.miller@boeing.com