ANA Selects Boeing 777s and 767s

SEATTLE, Dec. 21 – Boeing is delighted that ANA (All Nippon Airways) has selected additional777s and 767s for its fleet. Both airplanes provide the superior performance that meet ANA's needs.

"ANA's decision reinforces the value these two great airplanes have delivered for its fleet needs," said Marlin Dailey, vice president of Sales, Boeing Commercial Airplanes. "The 777 and 767 have been proud contributors to ANA's success and will continue to play a vital role in its fleet strategy."

The Boeing 777 offers operational efficiency, unprecedented passenger comfort and superior range and payload, making it the market leader in its size category. The Boeing 767, operated by more than 130 carriers worldwide, consistently delivers the versatility, on-time performance and profitability that its customers have come to rely on.

We look forward to finalizing the order with ANA.
