Boeing Unveils First 787 to Enter Service for Japan Airlines

Dreamliner will be used for airline's new Tokyo Narita-Boston route

EVERETT, Wash., Dec. 14, 2011 /PRNewswire/ -- The first Boeing (NYSE: BA) 787 Dreamliner to enter service for Japan Airlines (JAL) rolled out of the paint hangar last night. The airplane's livery features the iconic new brand mark on its tail and underscores the airline's commitment to provide the highest level of service to customers and contribute to the advancement of society. The logo is a distinct symbol of the airline which was the first Japanese carrier to fly internationally from Japan since 1954.
