

Boeing Statement on ANA Widebody Airplane Selection

SEATTLE, Mar. 27, 2014 – Boeing [NYSE:BA] is pleased that ANA today announced the selection of 40 Boeing widebody airplanes for its strategic fleet renewal, including 20 777-9X, 14 787-9 and 6 777-300ER (extended range) airplanes. The agreement with the Japanese airline is valued at approximately $13 billion at list prices.

“ANA and Boeing share a long and successful partnership that spans more than five decades,” said Boeing Commercial Airplanes President and CEO Ray Conner. “ANA helped launch the 787 Dreamliner with Boeing, and we are honored to once again have ANA as an early customer of the 777X family of airplanes. We are very proud that they operate an all-Boeing widebody fleet.”

Boeing looks forward to working with ANA on finalizing the agreement at which time the order will be posted to the Boeing Orders & Deliveries website.

#

Contacts:

Kevin Yoo
International Communications
Boeing Commercial Airplanes
+1 206 249-6372
kevin.k.yoo@boeing.com

Rob Henderson
Japan Communications
The Boeing Company
+81 -90-1420-9662
robert.j.henderson3@boeing.com

Additional assets available online: Photos \(1\)