

Boeing Wins Best Employers for Healthy Lifestyles Award from National Business Group on Health

Boeing Wins Best Employers for Healthy Lifestyles Award from National Business Group on Health

Boeing recognized with highest Platinum Award for one of the nation's best workforce well-being programs

CHICAGO, Oct. 13, 2016 /PRNewswire/ -- Boeing [NYSE: BA] has been recognized by The National Business Group on Health for having one of the best workforce well-being programs in the nation.

The National Business Group on Health, a non-profit association of 425 large U.S. employers, recognized the company with a Platinum Award for Boeing's Well Being program, which provides a suite of tools, activities and resources to holistically support physical, financial and emotional well-being. In addition to the Platinum award, Boeing was one of just five companies receiving the Top Honors designation from the panel of judges.

"We are honored to receive this important recognition of our efforts to provide holistic mind and body well-being programs and benefits," said Heidi Capozzi, senior vice president of Human Resources. "Boeing is committed to supporting our employees as they tirelessly innovate to connect, protect, explore and inspire the world."

Boeing's Well Being Program includes: an annual company-wide physical activity challenge that this year enrolled more than 100,000 employees; confidential health screenings and an online health assessment; health coaching, free flu vaccines, smoking cessation, fitness and weight management programs; job conditioning and on-site rehabilitation programs to reduce risk of injury and improve physical function, as well as healthy eating options at company facilities.

Beyond physical well-being, Boeing also offers retirement planning resources and tools, financial education, investment advice programs, stress management, anonymous depression screening and an employee assistance program.

"Our goal is engage the right employees in the right programs at the right time because quality of life is the most important thing for our employees," said Demi Hannon, director of Well Being and Retirement Strategy.

Another significant well-being milestone for the company was having its 401(k)-style retirement plan ranked second among large employees by Bloomberg.

Brian Marcotte, President and CEO of the National Business Group on Health, commented: "We congratulate Boeing for their dedication to improving the well-being of their employees. Employers are transitioning their focus from offering traditional wellness programs focused primarily on improving their employees' physical health to holistic well-being strategies aimed at enhancing the various facets of employees and their families' lives. We commend Boeing and its leaders for their innovation."

Boeing is among 55 U.S. employers that received the 2016 Best Employers for Healthy Lifestyles award presented at the National Business Group on Health's Fall Conference. Winners of the 2016 Best Employers for Healthy Lifestyle awards were honored in one of three categories: Platinum, for implementing a workforce well-being strategy with demonstrated results across the dimensions of well-being; Gold, for organizations with a strong commitment to holistic well-being and related metrics; Silver, for organizations with emerging well-being strategies and metrics; often with a focus on physical health.

About the National Business Group on Health®

The National Business Group on Health is the nation's only non-profit organization devoted exclusively to representing large employers' perspective on national health policy issues and helping companies optimize business performance through health improvement, innovation and health care management. The Business Group leads initiatives to address the most relevant health care issues facing employers today and enables human resource and benefit leaders to learn, share and leverage best practices from the most progressive companies. Business Group members, which include 72 Fortune 100 companies, provide health coverage for more than 50 million U.S. workers, retirees and their families. For more information, visit www.businessgrouphealth.org

Contact:

Victoria Wiedel

Office: +1 312-544-2674

Mobile: +1 312-218-7420

victoria.j.wiedel@boeing.com

Follow us on Twitter: @Boeing

SOURCE Boeing
