Boeing Wins Five-Year Contract to Sustain Republic of Korea F-15K Fleet

Performance-Based Logistics Contract Improves Aircraft Readiness, Drives Down Customer Costs

ST. LOUIS, March 13, 2017 – Boeing [NYSE: BA] has received a five-year contract to continue long-term sustainment of the Republic of Korea Air Force's (ROKAF) F-15K aircraft, supporting to the fleet's readiness.

"This approach guarantees materials and technical support required for aircraft maintenance over many years while managing costs," said Tim Buerk, director, F-15 sustainment in the Far East region and United States. "It also provides opportunities for us to utilize local industry to help maintain and manufacture F-15K components, cutting down on cycle times."

Boeing has been sustaining the ROKAF's F-15K fleet since 2012.

Hyundai Glovis, a Seoul-based supplier, will partner with Boeing on logistics handling and supply chain distribution in country.

For more information on Defense, Space & Security, visitwww.boeing.com. Follow us on Twitter:@BoeingDefense.

# #

Contact:

Christian Chapman
Integrated Logistics
+1 314-545-6039
+1 314-704-7221
christian.s.chapman@boeing.com